

Rewarding Leadership Initiative

In response to the Daring to Lead 2006 report, the Meyer Foundation has launched Rewarding Leadership, a three-year $2.2 million initiative to stabilize and strengthen the executive leadership of its grantees. Components of the initiative include increased training opportunities for executive directors in Greater Washington, expanded grant support for executive transitions and executive coaching, and the Exponent Award, which provides recognition and substantial leadership development grant funding for up to five outstanding executive directors each year. Rewarding Leadership also will result in closer partnerships with key nonprofits in the region to provide networking opportunities for executive directors.

"Your initiative, reported in today's Washington Post, which will assist nonprofit executives in the Washington, DC area, is much needed. Congratulations for your leadership in supporting this outstanding effort."

LAWRENCE SCHUMANN, Boards & Execs International, Inc.
